BULGARIAN ARMY IS HARD PRESSED

Fall of Veles Is Declared to Be Imminent.

SERBIAN DRIVE CONTINUES

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The Serbian legation here made public the following official communication:

"Although Veles is not yet in the hands of the French and British troops the Bulgarians are hard pressed and the fall of the town is imminent. The Bulgarians in the region of Veles have suffered enormous losses and have requested an armistice to bury their dead."

GERMANS GAINING SLOWLY

Throw Back Serbians Along Their Entire Front.

Berlin, Nov. 14.—Teutonic armies commanded by Generals Koeves and Gallwitz, after sanguinary fighting, again have thrown back the Serbians along their whole front, says the report issued at the German army headquarters. Serbians to the number of 1,713 were taken prisoners and two cannon captured.

German troops under General von Linsingen also have penetrated the Russian lines near Czartorysk, in Volhynia, and have captured 1,515 Russians and four machine guns, according to the announcement.

Russian attacks north of the Kovv-Sarny railroad broke down before the Austro-Hungarian lines.

NEW FRENCH LOAN MEASURE PASSES

Paris, Nov. 15.—The bill providing for a new French loan was passed by the chamber of deputies after an explanation by Finance Minister Ribot, who said the object was to avoid increasing indefinitely the short term debt.

The rate of interest is fixed at 5 per cent and the government renounces the right of payment until after Jan. 1, 1931.

M. Ribot declared the loan marked the determination of France to continue the war with arms and money until victory is achieved.

He concluded with an appeal to business houses, banks, the press, rich and poor alike for all the aid they can give. The bill was unanimously adopted.

UNEASINESS IN WASHINGTON

No Official News Regarding Sinking of Italian Ship

Washington, Nov. 15.—Conflicting reports in the press concerning the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona caused uneasiness among high officials of the United States government. The feeling was intensified through their failure to receive any official information from either Ambassador Page at Rome or Ambassador Penfield at Vienna.

From the Austrian statement officials thought the case might develop a parallel to that of the British steamer Falatia, torpedoed by a German submarine with the loss of Leon C. Thresher, an American citizen.

Powder Blast Jars City.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 15.—Winds in many houses at Rising Sun and Dupont were shattered and dwellings all over the city rocked as by an earthquake when 200 pounds of powder exploded in a wheelhouse in the lower flagley yards of the Dupont Power works. No one was in the works at the time.

Texas Marshal Kills Sheriff.

Beeville, Tex., Nov. 15.—C. P. Edison, city marshal, is under arrest, charged with killing Sheriff Will Holland. The shooting occurred in the lobby of the Beeville Bank and Trust company. Each man is said to have fired twice. The cause of the trouble is not known.

Will Use Interned Liners.

Milan, Nov. 15.—A Genoa dispatch to the Secolo says the Italian government has decided to fit out and use German liners which are interned in Italian ports. Three or four of the vessels at Genoa alone have a total tonnage of 32,000.

EDWIN P. MORROW.

Will Contest Election of A. O. Stanley as Kentucky's Governor.

After a long delay Congressman Stanley, Democrat, has been declared elected by 386 majority, but Mr. Morrow, Republican, will fight for a recount.

WEST CANADA MUST RECRUIT 10,000 MEN.

Winnipeg, Nov. 15.—Final orders received from Dominion officials provide for the raising of nine additional battalions in the western provinces, to become a part of Canada's new army of 100,000 men for service in Europe.

Three of the divisions will be raised in Winnipeg, one at Selkirk, one at Kenora, one in Moose Jaw, one in Prince Albert, and two in Manitoba outside of Winnipeg. The battalions in the three western provinces will require about 10,000 men.

REV. DR. P. F. BRESEE DEAD

Founder of Pentecost Church of the Nazarene Expires.

Los Angeles, Nov. 15.—Rev. Dr. Phineas F. Bresee, who twenty years ago founded the Pentecost church of the Nazarene, died at his home here, aged seventy-seven years. Coming here from Iowa in 1882 he was a Methodist pastor until 1895, when with 100 followers he established the Church of the Nazarene. At the general assembly in Kansas City a few weeks ago official reports showed 729 churches with 31,600 members.

SERBIANS OCCUPY TETOVO

Dispatch From Saloniki Tells of Bulgarian Defeat.

London, Nov. 15.—A dispatch to Reuters from Saloniki says: The fighting between the Serbians and Bulgarians in the region of Tetovo resulted in a success for the Serbians, who occupied the town of Tetovo, capturing one gun and a quantity of stores. Tetovo is a point of some importance, which may have a bearing on further developments in that quarter.

The Serbian success cannot fail to have an influence on the position at Katchanik pass.

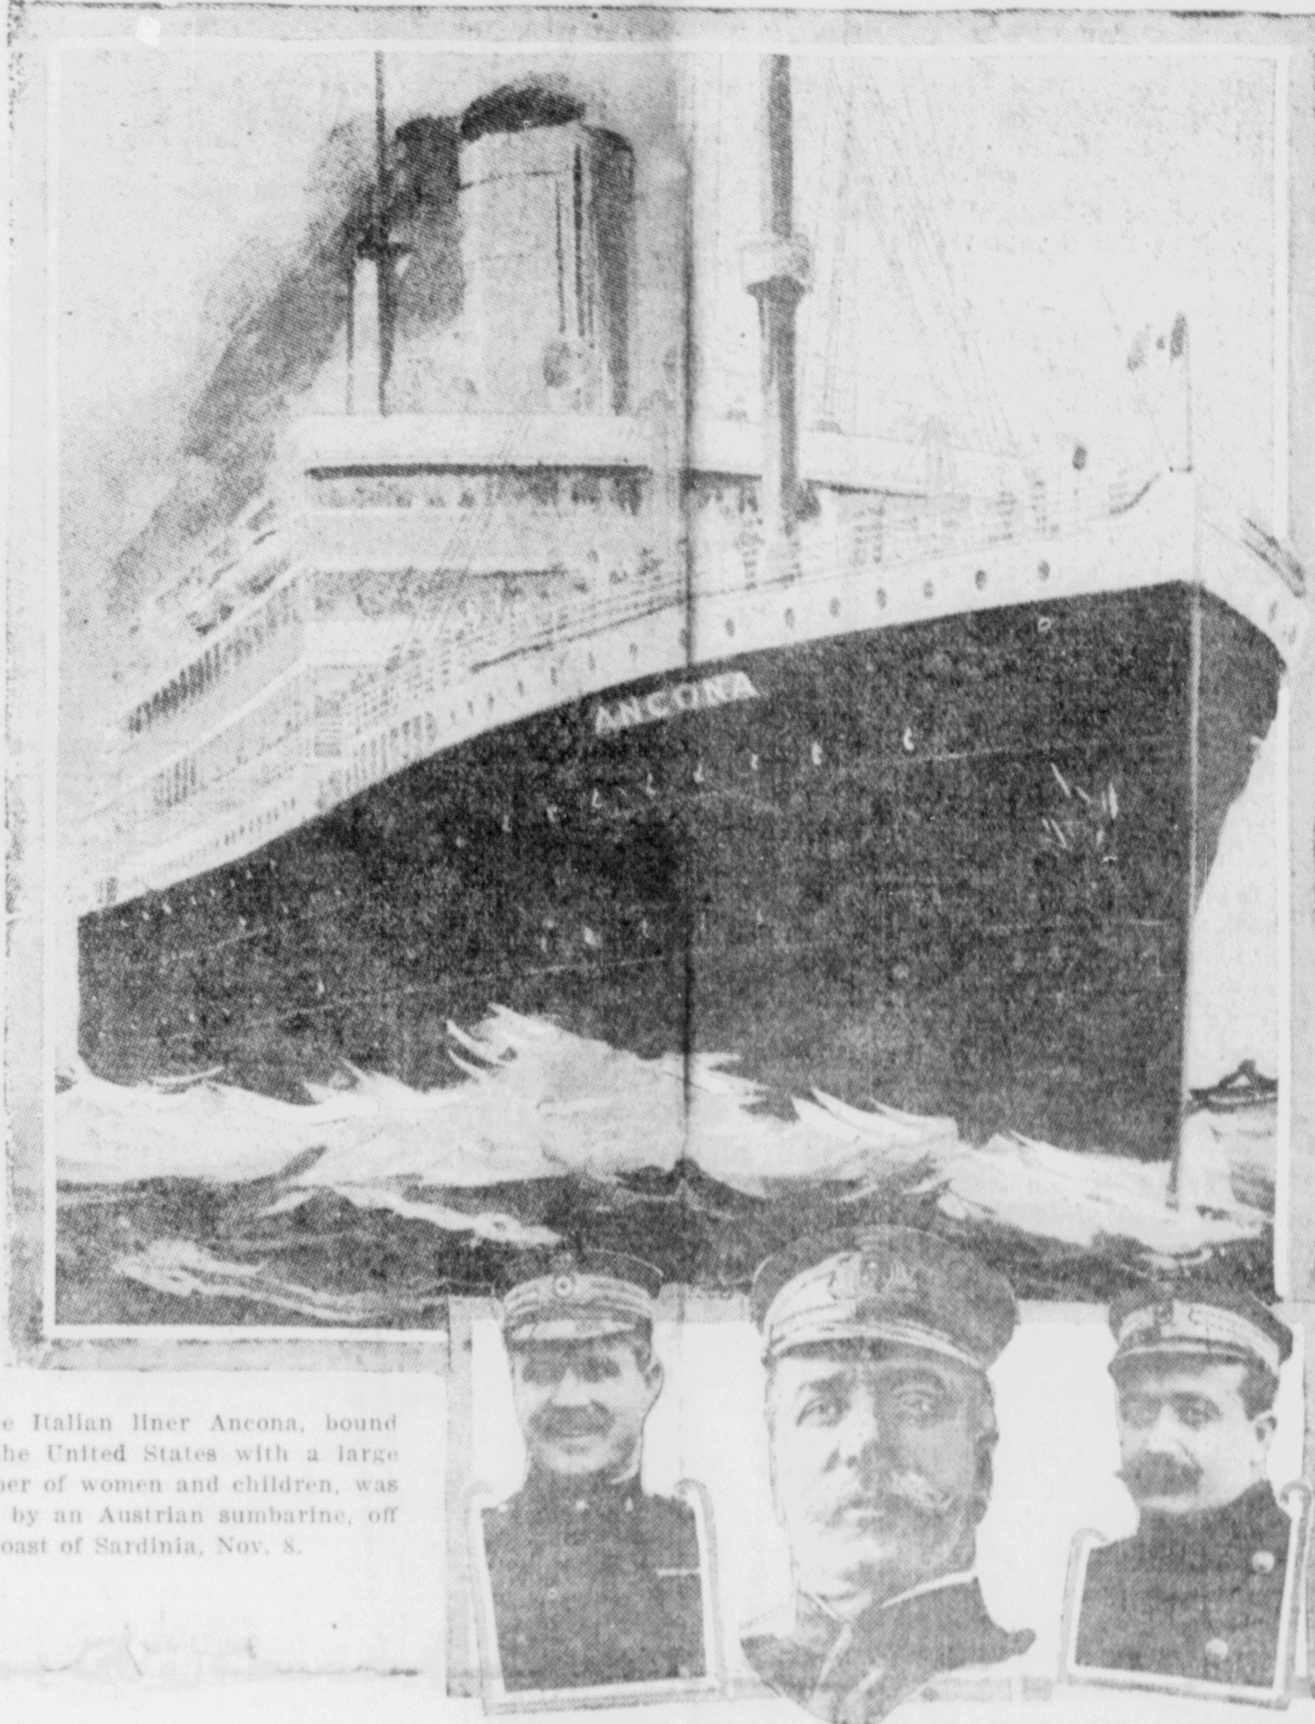

A Bulgarian attack on the left bank of the Ornya river was repulsed with heavy losses. Toward the south in the Valandovo region the French captured several trenches.

NO PACKAGES FOR GERMANY

Steamship Companies Will Not Carry Parcel Post.

Washington, Nov. 15.—A formal order was issued by the postoffice department directing postmasters hereafter to refuse to accept parcel post packages for Germany, Austria and Hungary. The order was made necessary by the refusal of the steamship company which has been carrying parcel post mail for these countries to accept such mail any longer.

Italian Liner Sunk by Austrian Submarine

The Italian liner Ancona, bound for the United States with a large number of women and children, was sunk by an Austrian submarine, off the coast of Sardinia, Nov. 8.

LATEST WAR NEWS

GERMANS MAKE FIERCE ATTACK

(By United Press)

Paris, Nov. 15.—Violent rifle and grenade fighting raged all night in the vicinity of Labyrinth in Artois, it is officially reported, the Germans suffering heavy losses. The French exploded a mine at Ciery wrecking German defenses. The Germans attacked the French in tremendous force, sometimes as often as 20 times a day, but the French consistently repulsed all attacks and inflicted losses averaging 2,000 to each unit of German troops engaged. It is also officially reported that the French forces along the Tzerna river in southern Serbia repulsed the Bulgarians.

AUSTRIANS WIN IN GALICIA

(By United Press)

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The Austrian-Hungarian forces have entirely cleared the west bank of the Styre of Russians, the Vienna war offices announce. The victory is regarded as the most important in the recent Gallician warfare.

ITALIAN LINER IS SUNK BY AUSTRIANS

(By United Press)

London, Nov. 15.—Dispatches fail to account for the missing load of passengers and sailors from the Italian liner Bosnia, sunk by an Austrian submarine in the Mediterranean. Four boat loads have been landed.

CONDITIONS THE SAME

(By United Press)

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The field commander of the Austrian forces cabled here that he had maintained all positions just as he took charge of them when the war began. He declared the third Isonzo battle ended in an Italian defeat, and praised the work of the Italian artillery and the bravery of the Italian troops at Goritz Bridgehead.

ALLIES ADVANCING IN SERBIA

(By United Press)

Athens, Nov. 15.—The British, French and Serbians are going foot by foot against the Bulgarians in southern Serbia. The Bulgarians are in a considerable majority, but are broken up into small bands. The French artillery fire has caused appalling losses in the Bulgarian ranks.

MORE SERBIANS CAPTURED

(By United Press)

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The invaders are pushing the campaign rapidly in northern Serbia, and from headquarters is reported the capture of 8,500 more Serbs.

Wins First Step Against Extradition

(By United Press)

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Thomas Kelly, the millionaire Winnipeg contractor, won the first step in his fight against extradition on the charge of murdering a million dollars in Winnipeg public contracts when Judge Landis granted the habeas corpus petition.

Circumstances Not Stated

Washington, Nov. 15.—A report from Ambassador Sharpe to the state department regarding the sinking of the Ancona gave the number of survivors as 232, but failed to give the circumstances of the attack on the boat which resulted in sinking her.

Wilson Reinstates Discharged Postmaster

(By United Press)

Washington, Nov. 15.—President Wilson has instructed Postmaster General Burleson to reinstate George Burkitt, assistant postmaster at Winnetka, Ill., if the only charges against him are that he criticized the president for his coming marriage. The letter sent Burkitt by Postmaster A. M. Kloefer referred to certain demerits against him, but it is not believed these charges will be pressed. President Wilson feels he should have been personally consulted by Postmaster Kloefer before the action was taken, considering the charges.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—In a long distance talk with George Burkitt, of Winnetka, he declared he knew that he would be reinstated by President Wilson, and admitted that he voiced the sentiment that President Wilson should not marry until a year after his first wife's death, but meant no disrespect to the president in the statement.

Renewal of Patrol Causes Investigation

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The recent renewal by England of the warship patrol of the United States Atlantic coast, culminating in the chasing of the steamer Vinland into Norfolk, may result in a protest and a demand for the withdrawal of the British cruisers, it became known here today. An investigation has been started both by the state and navy departments.

Prosecute Where Liquor is Delivered

Washington, Nov. 15.—The offense of shipping improperly marked liquor in inter-state traffic is not completed when the package is delivered for shipment, the supreme court holds. It has been decided that indictments may be brought in the district where the liquor is delivered.

SAYS ITALIAN SHIP DECLINED TO STOP

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The Austro-Hungarian admiralty announced officially that the Italian steamship Ancona attempted to escape at full speed after a warning shot had been fired across its bow and that the vessel stopped only after being shelled several times by an Austrian submarine, says the Overseas News agency.

The submarine commander, it is further asserted, allowed the Ancona's passengers and crew forty-five minutes to abandon the ship, after which the vessel was torpedoed, sinking three-quarters of an hour later. The report that the submarine fired upon the lifeboats is denied.

CALLS ACT UNJUSTIFIED

Italian Government Denounces Sinking of the Ancona.

Rome, Nov. 15.—The Italian government has sent an official communication to the neutral governments dealing with the sinking by a submarine of the Italian liner Ancona. The note denies that the Ancona carried any arms or contraband or persons in belligerent military service, or that there were any circumstances justifying such an attack as a necessity of war.

The note declares that the submarine began to cannonade the Ancona without any warning or a blank shot and fired even at the boats in which passengers were attempting to escape.

"Many of these," adds the note, "were killed or wounded, while many who approached the submarine were driven off with jeers. Thus, nearly 200 persons were drowned."

CARRANZA IN OFFICE NOV. 20

Zapata and Other Troops Are Surrendering Their Arms.

Washington, Nov. 15.—General Carranza will enter Mexico City about Nov. 20 to take charge of the government re-established there, it is announced by the Carranza agency. He is now making a tour of Northern Mexico in company with General Obregon.

The agency's advice say large numbers of Zapata and other troops which have been fighting the Carranzistas are now surrendering their arms.

BRYAN STARTS FOR FLORIDA

Former Secretary Closes Washington Home to Winter in South.

Washington, Nov. 15.—William Jennings Bryan closed his home here and departed for Miami, Fla., where he will spend the next three months at his winter residence. Mr. Bryan announced that from time to time he would issue statements on several subjects of a public nature which are scheduled for consideration during the coming session of congress.

GENERAL BEADLE IS DEAD

Prominent Figure in Affairs of Dakota Territory Succumbs.

San Francisco, Nov. 15.—Brigadier General William Henry Harrison Beadle of Madison, S. D., prominent in the affairs of Dakota territory and a leader in the movements to conserve school lands in several states, died here after an illness of a month. He was seventy-seven years old.

General Beadle came here to visit his daughter, Mrs. Fred B. Hughes.

NEGRO EDUCATOR PASSES AWAY

Booker T. Washington Dies at Tuskegee, Ala.

KNEW END WAS VERY NEAR

Founder and President of Institute to Educate Members of His Race Hurries Home From New York and Expires Four Hours After His Arrival There.

Tuskegee, Ala., Nov. 15.—Booker T. Washington, foremost teacher and leader of the negro race, died at his home here near the Tuskegee institute, of which he was founder and president. Hardening of the arteries, following a nervous breakdown, caused death four hours after Dr. Washington arrived from New York.

Although he had been in failing health for several months the negro leader's condition became serious only last week while he was in the East. He then realized the end was near, but was determined to make the last long trip South. He had said often, "I was born in the South, have lived all my life in the South and expect to die and be buried in the South."

Accompanied by his wife, his secretary and a physician, Dr. Washington left New York for Tuskegee at 4 p. m. Friday. His last public appearance was at the national conference of Congregational churches in New York, where he delivered a lecture Oct. 25.

A widow, three children and four grandchildren survive. John W. Washington, a brother, is superintendent of industries at Tuskegee institute.

Funeral Occurs Wednesday.

The funeral will be held at Tuskegee institute at 10 a. m. Wednesday. Dr. Washington was born in slavery near Hale's Ford, Va., in 1857 or 1858. After the emancipation of his race he moved with his family to West Virginia. He was an ambitious boy and saved his money for an education. When he was able to scrape together sufficient money to pay his stage coach fare to Hampton, Va., he entered General Armstrong's school for negroes there and worked his way through an academic course, graduating in 1875.

Later he became a teacher in the Hampton institute, where he remained until 1881, when he organized the industrial school for negroes at Tuskegee, to which he devoted most of his attention during the remaining years of his life.

The institute started in a rented shanty church and today it owns 3,500 acres of land in Alabama and has nearly 100 buildings, valued at half a million dollars.

Washington won the sympathy and support of leading Southerners by a speech in behalf of his race at the Cotton States exposition in Atlanta in 1895. In addition to his prominence as an educator he gained considerable fame as an author. An honorable degree of master of arts was conferred upon him by Harvard university in 1896 and in 1901 he was given an honorary degree of doctor of laws by Dartmouth college.

THIRTY PERSONS KILLED BY BOMBS

Rome, Nov. 15.—Thirty persons are dead in Verona as the result of three Austrian aeroplanes dropping bombs on the city. Thirty other persons were seriously and nineteen slightly injured.

The bombs of the aircraft found most of their victims in the principal square of the city, where citizens and peasants from the outlying districts were attending market. Nineteen were killed by one bomb.

The aeroplane visited various parts of the city, but none of the missiles dropped by them fell near any of the military buildings.

DIVORCE PAPERS SERVED ON EVELYN THAW.
Pittsburg, Nov. 15.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, passing through this city on a St. Louis train, was served with the papers in the divorce suit instituted in the local courts by Harry K. Thaw.
When officers boarded the train here Mrs. Thaw looked herself in the Pullman state-room. The papers were pushed under the door.

ELECTRICAL AGE TO REVIVE NATION

Steinmetz Says It Will More Evenly Distribute Population.

STEAM CAUSES MANY EVILS

Tells How Conditions in the Factory, in the Home and on the Farm Are Being Changed as Electricity Is More Generally Used and Understood—Entire World Facing New Era.

Poor, old fashioned, clumsy and inefficient steam power! It had a hard day recently, and its hardest days are still ahead, in the opinion of Dr. C. P. Steinmetz, the " Edison " of the insiders in the electrical field.

Besides being chief electrical engineer of one of the greatest electrical concerns in the world, Dr. Steinmetz is also responsible for a long list of patent rights.

Hardly four feet tall, wearing the same fierce black beard and wirelike pompadour and the same piercing gray eyes that alone would make any passerby turn and stare, he was even more impressive as he leaned on the back of his chair and in the most commonplace tones redivided the periods of civilization into the time before and after the development of electricity, renamed the most important date in American history as the time when electrical development work was undertaken and predicted the end of human drudgery, slums and steam railroads.

Electricity Changing World. "Gentlemen," he said in addressing the members of the Electric club in Chicago, "can't you see the face of the earth changing before your very eyes? It is changing the city, the factory and the home just as radically as steam changed it.

"Steam built up our great cities, with their congestion and slums. Electricity will break them down and scatter the population evenly over the continent, because electricity can be transmitted anywhere by simple transmission wires. Steam must be used where generated and where there is a large labor supply.

Cheap Land to Deside. "With full electrical development the labor supply need not be right at the factory door. It can be moved cheaply and quickly morning and evening. There will be no necessity for locating near where the power can be produced the cheapest, as in the steam factory, because the power can be carried over the wires.

"The factories will then go where the land is cheapest. Electricity will run errands in the home.

"The cost is all that is standing in the way. But the high cost is due to the limited use of the electrical motor rather than any natural disability. It is as simple as an alarm clock and should and would be as cheap if it were used as generally. All we need is better distribution. The more we use the lower the cost per unit and the more electricity will supplant steam and hand power, just as steam once supplanted hand power."

Dr. Steinmetz also paid his respects to the plan of an advisory board of civilian inventors for the navy.

Just How It Was. An old lady from out of town visited the city and while there saw a boxing match. On her return home she said:

"My rich son-in-law took me to a prizefight one evening. I never saw such a thing. The two men came out on the stage and shook hands like the best of friends. Then they began to punch each other, and all for nothing. They kept on punching away till a man in the corner yelled 'Time!' No body answered him, so I pulled out my watch and shouted, 'Ten o'clock!'"—Washington Star.

DRAWING THE ROADS.

A Certain Amount of Highway Work Should Be Done by Every Farmer.

The working out of the road tax is a thing of the past in most states. It became a joke, writes W. J. Harsha in the Country Gentleman. Men appeared with all sorts of implements and did every sort of work except good work. It is no more. Still, as a matter of public policy and private profit, a certain amount of road building should be undertaken by every farmer. We have found, in our county, that if the farmers jump in for a few days' work at the opportune moment they save taxes and repairs.

Of course we use the split log drag. This is simple, efficient and cheap. We take care to make the drag so light that one man can lift it, yet heavy enough to do the business.

Dry cedar logs are best for the purpose, though other woods—elm, walnut, box elder or soft maple—are recommended. Oak, hickory and ash are too heavy. We take logs from seven to ten feet long and from eight to ten inches in diameter at the butt end. White spruce does very well if cedars are scarce. Red spruce is too heavy. Dry aspens are too light.

We split the logs as near the center as possible. We use the heavier slab in front and shoe it with a strip of iron along the lower face. We run the drag at an angle of about forty-five degrees.

We aim to drag the main portions of our roads soon after each heavy rain. With us this comes during our busy season, since our heaviest rains occur in laying and harvest time.

But we try to jump to the work, since neglect will make double work later on. We have our sluggards, but public sentiment is so strong that the majority of our farmers come to time.

A hundred days' work, distributed through the year, will keep a road in better shape than a hundred days of continuous labor.

When the soil is moist and not too sticky the drag does its best work. Packed wet, the soil of a road will pack just as the soil of a field will. If, however, the roadway is full of ruts and holes it is often best to run the drag when the soil is slushy, taking risk of baked and uneven stretches. During our January thaw we sometimes drag over our roads. The subsequent freezing gives them a comparatively smooth surface.

"A farmer is correctly judged by his fences," is an old saying. The new public spirit demands an addition to this: A farmer is quite as accurately judged by the roads in front of and within his bordering fences.

The Seven Wonders.

I wonder if my wife will stand for that "night work at the office" gag again.

I wonder who I can touch for a loan.

I wonder if he'll come again tonight.

I wonder whether he's holding a good hand or bluffing.

I wonder how she keeps from showing her age.

I wonder if that's her last year's hat made over.

I wonder how they keep up appearances on his salary.—Pittsburgh Press.

Old Reapers.

Contrary to the common belief, reaping machines are not a modern invention. They were used nearly 2,000 years ago, Pliny, the Roman historian, tells of some he saw at work in the first century of our era.

TO INVITE ONLY FIFTY TO PRESIDENT'S WEDDING.

Invitations Will Be Sent by Phone, According to Capital Gossip.

It has been learned on good authority that not more than fifty people will be invited to the Wilson-Galt wedding. An intimate friend stated the wisdom of engraving invitations or simply calling the guests by telephone and inviting them to the wedding.

Miss Eleanor Wilson followed the latter plan on the occasion of her marriage to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. She wrote personal notes of invitation to out of town friends. Thousands of announcement cards will be sent out from the White House immediately after the wedding.

A very probable guest list will include the vice president and Mrs. Marshall, Speaker and Mrs. Champ Clark, the secretary of state and Mrs. Robert Lansing, the secretary of the treasury and Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, Miss Nona McAdoo and William G. McAdoo, Jr.; the secretary of the interior and Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, the secretary of labor and Mrs. William B. When a Man Wants Too Much.

A fine old specimen of southern manly answered the ring. The caller was informed that the lady of the house was out. "Is yo' lookin' for room?" he was asked. He replied that he wanted a room with modern conveniences, such as hot and cold water, private bath, steam heat, etc.

"Yas, suh. Well, it's dis way. Ev' thing yo' mention is used by de family, an' anybody dat tels a room in dis house am expected to git what yo' speak of on de outside."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

SUNDAY PROVED A BANNER DAY

Swedish Revival Meetings Bring Out the Largest Meetings of the Entire Campaign

WILL COME TO A CLOSE TONIGHT

Singing was Very Spirited and the Solos of Rev. Hognander Were Well Received

Sunday proved a banner day in the Swedish revival campaign which comes to a close tonight. The evening meeting brought out the largest audience during the entire campaign.

The singing was very spirited and the solos of Rev. Hognander were well rendered and greatly appreciated.

Rev. Johnson delivered an excellent sermon, touching on the different callings God gives the people.
The greatest sin, said the speaker, was the casting away of God when he called. God was always willing to forgive sinners.

There were twelve or more converts last night and a great many more asked for prayers during the day.

The afternoon meeting on "The Home" was probably the best during the series of revival meetings.
"Home building is no play," said the speaker. "It takes more than money to build homes. It takes true love." He advised young people to make sure of their love before marrying.

He said memories of the childhood home are always the dearest. If you lived right in the home, the children will nearly always follow the examples of right living illustrated before their very eyes.

"Barndomsheemet," the solo by Rev. Hognander, was given with much feeling and pathos. The farewell meeting will be held this evening.

PLEASING SACRED CONCERT

Large Audience Enjoys Services at Methodist Church Last Night

The musical program given last evening at the Methodist church by the choir was much appreciated by a large audience who gave rapt attention to the various numbers rendered. The anthems by the choir were sung with precision and choice harmony. The solo sung by Miss Anna Thorp entitled "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" was well rendered. The duet sung by Messrs. Small and Long entitled "No Hope Beyond" was a most impressive dialogue of song with a helpful message. The tenor solo, "The Good Shepherd" rendered by Mr. Small fitted into the program in a very appropriate manner.
Mr. Small has an exceedingly sweet and pleasing tenor voice which is rarely found.

The pastor preached a short sermon on "The Mission and Message of Music," seeking of "Handel's Messiah" as sung by the Boston Symphony Chorus of four hundred voices with an orchestra of three hundred pieces as one of earth's grandest harmonies.
He made the application that if our lives are kept in tune with the Infinite, they will be made one grand sweet song. Immediately following the sermon, the male quartet brought to a very pleasing conclusion this musical evening by rendering "Memories of Galilee." Miss Warner, the accompanist, presided at the piano in a most efficient manner. Thanks are due Dr. E. E. Long, director of the choir and the singers who assisted for this musical treat.

Big Maccabees Dance

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, in the Camels Temple, the Ladies of the Maccabees are going to give the first of a series of dancing parties to be working energetically to make this event a success and extend to the public in general a most cordial invitation.

A Lady Maccabee poet turned out

And help to make for the Maccabee

MISS MOODY'S SHOW SUCCESS

"She's a Successful Little Lady, Too, Because She is Sunshiny and the Kids Love Her"

The Altin Independent-Age says nice things about the entertainment and the Brainerd young lady who put on the play in that city recently, as follows:

Miss Ruth Moody of Brainerd put on a good show in Altin Friday evening of last week under the caption, "Musical Revue." It was greeted by a packed house which enjoyed most of the numbers, and went away laughing and enthusiastic from an evening of good, clean fun. The kiddies were the big attraction, and they were everywhere, until one wondered if there could be any more.
They lined up and hopped and skipped and danced and sang, and some of us all but stood up and howled when one small pajamaed lad punched another in the stomach to make him "get over." They were very real kids—though some of them were bigger than others.

From Altin Miss Moody went to Grand Rapids, to put on another show, for that's her business, putting on shows, and she is a successful little lady, too—mostly because she's a sunshiny one and the kids love her.

BLIND EYE MADE GOOD.

Operation Has Peculiar Effect of Restoring Sight.

An operation for appendicitis performed on Ralph von Hacht, aged twenty-three, of Milford, Conn., has resulted in the restoring to the young man of the sight of one eye, which had been blind since his birth.

The operation was performed by Dr.
Francis Campbell and members of the staff of Trinity hospital, New York.
When the physicians removed von Hacht's appendix several weeks ago they had no idea that they were going to restore his sight. It seems, however, that the appendix had been resting against one of the large nerves that form part of the system which connects with the optic nerves.

After the operation, von Hacht for the first time in his life distinguished darkness from light with his blind eye.
Soon he began to see objects with the eye. He was warned by the doctors not to exert his "blind" eye too much, but to allow it to grow stronger gradually. He said that the "blind" eye was nearly as good as the other eye.

WOMEN WIN WAGE VICTORY.

Munitions Workers to Receive as Much as Men.

In a statement issued David Lloyd George, British minister of munitions announces that women eighteen years of age and over engaged in munition work receive a minimum wage of £1 weekly. When doing skilled work, on time or by piece, women get the same pay as men, the announcement further states.

This official recognition of the right of women to receive the same pay as men for the same work is claimed as a great victory by militant suffragettes who have long been agitating the question.

MOTHER! DON'T TAKE CHANCES IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious,
Clean Little Liver and Bowels

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, Mother! If "coated" or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold, or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups.
Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs", which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle.

pany."—Adv't.

SHARPS AND FLATS

Maude Pratt Crane who will appear in Brainerd Nov. 27 at the Symphony concert, was a leading artist on a program in Des Moines, Ia., last week under the auspices of the Music & Literary club of that city.

The Junior Symphony orchestra will hold their rehearsal in the future on Thursday afternoon, instead of Friday, to increase a greater interest in music and musical composition. Mr. Bergh wishes to announce to his pupils and members of the Brainerd Symphony orchestra and to any one with ambition in a musical way, that a contest will be conducted before each concert to secure an original composition to be arranged for and played by the Brainerd Symphony orchestra. Only one, the best, will be accepted for each concert. There will be no grand prizes other than the signal honor attained by the composer. Manuscript must be plain with melody only. Each composition is to be mailed to Contest Manager, care E.
H. Bergh, Grand theatre, accompanied by name and address of composer.

Alice Johnstone is developing a very pleasing tone in connection with an able execution, the combination of which will surprise her friends at the coming recital.
Little Irene Evans won the admiration of all who heard her play last week at the Episcopal church. The number was of her own selection, which displayed a characteristic pleasing to her teacher and envied by her more advanced classmates.
Regular rehearsal of the Brainerd Symphony orchestra tonight in the Knights of Columbus hall.
Alice Johnstone, Kathleen Gemmell and Helen Frost were heard in a trio on the same program which was worthy of the favorable comment of many who were present.

Among and yet apart from the rest of the entertainers was John Gemmell, cellist. His cello solo was welcomed as only the pleasure of once in a great while can be.

The entire proceeds of the recital given by the pupils of the Bergh Violin School, will be donated for a charitable purpose. Remember the night, Friday, Nov. 19th.

Miss Elizabeth Armstrong will sing songs in the French and English languages at the Symphony orchestra concert Nov. 26th. In her usually pleasing manner. A rose by any other name would be just as sweet but a song in any language other than its native one has lost its charm.

Prof. Jules LaDuce, a noted pianist of Duluth, called on a number of his Brainerd friends Friday and his irresistible personality is responsible for a number of others more recently acquired.

Poets are born, as well as other folks, statistics do not show whether they live longer than those whose hair starts just above the second wrinkle, but they sometimes wander away, literally and figuratively.
We prefer the former if possible, unless they set their efforts to music, as it is so satisfying to play "Ase's Death" after perusing an ever-sotiresome Ode to an ambitious rose that grows and grows, like feet that scoot to stay in hose. Afterthought

Diamond Back Terrapin.

To select a real diamond back terrapin amateurs should be guided by these distinguishing and characteristic markings: It is of a greenish, dark olive color, sometimes running to spotted gray, yellow on the plate which surrounds the shell and has concentric dark stripes along the plate on both sides. The sides of the head are a dirty white, sprinkled with small black spots. The bottom shell is of whitish yellow. The males are much larger than the females and have the concentric streaks much better defined. The female has the more delicate flesh. The male can be distinguished by his toe nails, which are much longer than those of the female.

When the Death Penalty Was Common.

Until 1827 stealing a sheep was a capital crime in Great Britain. An act of that year removed the distinction between grand and petit larceny. Before that year the theft of goods above the value of twelvepence, in the house of the owner, though not from his person, was a capital crime. In 1890 over 200 and in 1819 about 180 crimes were punishable by the death penalty.

Exterminate the Whole Population

(By United Press)

Paris, Nov. 15.—Minister Vives, the Serbian agent here, in an interview declared the Germans, Austrians and Bulgarians intended to exterminate the entire population of Serbia, and the minister appealed to Americans to aid his country in the crisis. He asserted that the massacre of country folks, women, children and the wounded has already been commanded, and that half a million hungry and homeless fugitives are fleeing into Montenegro, Albania and Greece, and that these countries are too poor to care for them.

HOW TO IMPROVE ROADS.

Outside Committees Do Much to Aid Legislatures in Preparing Laws.

To aid legislatures in revising road laws and framing new road legislation a series of papers dealing exhaustively with existing road laws in each state is about to be issued under an arrangement made by the legislative committee of the American Highway association with the bureau of municipal research of New York city.

The complete compilation of road laws already thoroughly indexed and brought up to date has been submitted by the committee to A. N. Johnson, highway engineer of the bureau of municipal research, for use in the preparation of a series of papers and charts which will indicate the laws in each state which are conflicting, obsolete, vague or superfluous and the lines along which simplicity and efficiency in revision may be obtained. Included in the publications to be issued will be suggested models for laws covering state aid to road improvement, the use of convict labor, the issuing of bonds for road construction, the management of local roads, the regulation of traffic and other related subjects of legislation. Charts illustrating graphically the points of similarity and dissimilarity in the respective state systems will also be prepared.

The American Highway association, through its legislative committee, first secured the effective aid of the United States office of public roads in compiling all road laws, and the work which will now be done by the bureau of municipal research is a further step in turning this great fund of information to best advantage.

The third step in this important undertaking will comprise personal conferences and hearings in connection with state legislative programs by experts whose services will be arranged for by the Highway association.

NOT AN ACCIDENTAL DISPLAY OF RECKLESSNESS

By J. W. T. Mason, for United Press

An Austrian submarine campaign against Italian merchant vessels in the Mediterranean began this week in the sinking of the passenger liners Ancona and Firenze. It is probable Austria Hungary has decided to experiment with a policy of "frightfulness" for the purpose of trying to throw the temperamental Italians into deeper discouragement and forcing the Roman government to sign separate peace.

The New Mediterranean policy has been made at a time when dissatisfaction is growing in Italy at the persistent lack of success of the royal armies. Major offensive along the Isonzo and Alpine fronts are now being ended everywhere in complete failure and peace talk is beginning to be heard in Rome. Under these circumstances it is probable the Austro-Hungarians have decided to experiment with the submarine's capacity of exciting fear among non-combatants.

A new offensive by the Russians along the Dvina front succeeded this week in forcing Marshall von Hindenburg to retire from his advanced positions. There is no indication however that a large success has been won by the Slavs.

In southern Serbia, the Bulgarians were checked this week by the French supported by the British corps. The expedition of the western allies, however, has made no important progress. There is much mystery concerning the movements of the main Serbian and German armies. Reports indicate that the Serbian forces must be huddled together in a small area of central Serbia. If this be true, it is difficult to understand why so few Serbians have been captured.

The sinking of a second Italian passenger ship today by an enemy submarine suggests the destruction of the Ancona was not accidental display of recklessness, but was due to the deliberate adoption of a new Austro-Hungarian war policy against Italy. Hitherto the spirit of "frightfulness" has not been part Austro-Hungary's methods of fighting. Throughout the period of German submarine activity in British waters, the Austrians have remained quiescent in the Mediterranean until the present month.

November is now seeing the final failures of the Italian offensive along the Austrian front. Intense efforts have been made by the Italians to break through the enemy's lines before the beginning of winter. Everywhere however the Austro-Hungarians have fully held their own. The Italians have made no important gains anywhere. There are a number of indications that profound discouragement has been caused in Italy through the negative results of the autumn offensive. Pessimism is reported in one case to have led to a fracas at a cabinet council in which books were hurled at the head of one of the ministers. It is fear of the situation along the home frontier that has prevented the dispatch of troops to the Balkans and there are suggestions that a peace faction is at work in Rome, urging Italy's separate withdrawal from the war. There can be no doubt but that the joyous spirit of certainty that sent Italy into the war no longer prevails. It is highly probable that this accumulation of circumstances has caused the Austro-Hungarian government to believe the moment has arrived when Italy can be successfully terrorized into quitting the war. This may explain the new submarine policy in the Mediterranean. The Italians are a temperamental race with little of the Englishmen's phlegm and unemotionalism. The possibility undoubtedly exists that "frightfulness" at sea may have a more pronounced effect on the Italians than it has had on the British.

A WONDROUS LAND

The Yellowstone Region as James Bridger Saw It.

AND HE WAS A TRUTHFUL MAN

His Adventure With an Elk at the Famous Obsidian Cliff and the Effect of a Ride Through Afum Creek—Story of the Mountain That Was Cursed.

As a teller of tales Munchausen had a worthy rival in James Bridger, the celebrated hunter, trader and guide, whose name and career are part of the pioneer history of the west. Bridger was thoroughly familiar with the region now comprised in the Yellowstone park as far back as 1830.

In his book, "The Yellowstone Park," the author, Hiram Martin Chittenden, brigadier general United States army, retired, sets down some of the yarns Bridger told about that land of wonders. Many of the Yellowstone country tales ascribed to Bridger have survived to this day, probably because they have never been capped. The first story General Chittenden tells relates to the celebrated Obsidian cliff, a mass of black volcanic glass with which all the tourists are familiar. Its discovery by Bridger was the result of a hunting trip, and it happened in this way:

"Coming one day in sight of a magnificent elk, he took careful aim at the unsuspecting animal and fired. To his amazement the elk not only was not wounded, but seemed not to have heard the noise of the rifle. Bridger drew considerably nearer and gave the elk the benefit of his most deliberate aim, but with the same result as before. A third and fourth effort met with similar fate. Utterly exasperated, he seized his rifle by the barrel, resolved to use it as a club, since it had failed as a firearm. Rushing madly toward the elk, he suddenly crashed into an immovable vertical wall which proved to be a mountain of perfectly transparent glass, on the farther side of which, still in peaceful security, the elk was quietly grazing.

"Stranger still, the mountain was not only of pure glass, but was a perfect telescope lens, and, whereas the elk seemed but a few yards off, it was in reality twenty-five miles away."

Another of Bridger's discoveries was an ice cold spring near the summit of a lofty mountain, the water from which flowed down over a long, smooth slope, where it acquired such velocity that it was boiling hot when it reached the bottom. This, a later investigator of the Firehole river found, was a case in which a hot spring discharged into the river bed.

Alum creek, a tributary of the Yellowstone, received its name from an accidental discovery by Bridger. One day he forded the creek and rode out several miles and back. He noticed that the return journey was only a small fraction of the distance going and that his horse's feet had shrunk to mere points which sank into the solid ground so that the animal could scarcely hobble along. Seeking the cause, he found it to be in the astrigent qualities of the water, which was saturated with alum to such an extent that it had power to pucker distance itself.

Bridger also found a fine place to fish: "Somewhere along the shore an immense boiling spring discharges its overflow directly into the lake. The specific gravity of the water is less than that of the lake, owing to the expansive action of heat, and it floats in a stratum of three or four feet thick upon the cold water underneath. When Bridger was in need of fish it was to this place that he went. Through the hot upper stratum he let fall his bait to the subterranean habitable zone and, having hooked his victim, cooked him on the way out."

The visitor to the region of petrifications in the northeast corner of the park and to various points in the hot springs districts will have no difficulty in discovering the base material out of which Bridger contrived the following picturesque yarn:

"A mountain in the park was once cursed by a great medicine man of the Crow nation. Everything on the mountain at the time of this dire event became instantly petrified and has remained so ever since. All forms of life are standing about in stone where they were suddenly caught by the petrifying influences, even as the inhabitants of ancient Pompeii were surprised by the ashes of Vesuvius. Sagebrush, grass, prairie fowl, antelope, elk and bears may there be seen as perfect as in actual life. Dashing torrents and the spray mist from them stand forth in arrested motion as if carved from rock by a sculptor's chisel. Even flowers are blooming in colors of crystal, and birds soar with wings spread in motionless flight, while the air floats with music and perfume siliceous, and the sun and moon shine with petrified light." It is denied, though, that Bridger was responsible for the story that even the laws of gravitation were petrified in the region.

Uncontrollable Curiosity. "I don't see how it is that Mrs. Forwag has so many friends. She gossips terribly."

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "Everybody seems willing to take a chance or being talked about for the sake of hearing what she says about the others."—Washington Star.

She Knows. When you stagger out to a woman that you are as naïve and as poor as a groveling earthworm compared to a heavenly star like her you are only telling her what she knew all the time.—Florida Times-Union.

Will Insist on Passage of Many Administration Measures.

THOUGHT TO FAVOR CLOTURE

Absentees in Senate to Be Called to Account For Their Conduct if the Majority Is Again Embarrassed, as Was the Case Last Year—No Delay For This Reason to Be Countenanced.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, Nov. 15.—[Special.]—The possibility that the Republicans may win next year will cause the president to rush congress at the coming session. He will try to get through most of his legislative program and to that end will no doubt insist upon cloture in the senate.

While that may result in delay instead of speed, yet the majority under present rules can rush legislation if it is determined. By keeping in session long hours and hammering away at whatever is before the senate a great deal can be accomplished. But the majority must be sincere and must be attentive to the business of the senate.

May Criticize Absenteeism.

One great difficulty the majority suffered in the last congress was absenteeism. Democrats who could not protest loudly enough by lip loyalty their admiration of the president and everything he stood for were lax in attendance. They found it much more pleasant to be in New York, at home, on the lecture circuits and, in fact, anywhere but in the senate. Leaders were constantly embarrassed. Senator Kern frequently raised his voice in protest, but he had little effect.

It is believed that any delay in the program caused by absent Democrats will call forth a rebuke from the president that will make trouble for such senators in the future. The president does not propose to have his legislative plan go to pieces because his fellow Democrats do not attend.

Want Confirmation.

The administration would like confirmation of that brief dispatch from northern Europe to the effect that Bryan is to be in Norway the last of the month and from then on until late in the winter. Bryan's absence is greatly desired by those who see possibilities of a row if he remains in this country and opposes the president.

Can Carranza Stand?

Reports from Mexico say that it may be Carranza's luck to find the people of Mexico so tired of fighting that he will not have to contend with any more revolutions once he has conquered Villa. Those who know something about the temperament of the people say they will never tire of revolutions until a government is established which will show them how much better are peaceful ways than the waste and pillage of war. Carranza has done so much in the latter line that his followers will not be satisfied if he does not continue the custom after he has obtained full control of the country, if he ever accomplishes that result.

Preparation Popular.

"If the president puts through his war preparation policy nothing can defeat him."

The remark was made by a man who will vote against the Democratic party, but one who is not a politician. He had just returned from a trip through the southern states which extended from Washington to Texas. He said that everywhere the people were talking approvingly of the policy of putting this country in a position to defend itself in case of attack.

A Southern View.

Some southern men, no matter how obedient they may be in complying with the wishes of the president, are not at all satisfied with the military program, and in this they represent quite a large element in the country districts. "We can fight when we get ready," is what the country people are saying, or, "We can fight when the other fellow begins." They are not yet ready to subscribe to the doctrine of large armaments.

Sam McCall's Independence.

Samuel W. McCall, the governor elect of Massachusetts, had a great deal of independence when he was in congress and was constantly proposing amendments or resolutions which received the votes of himself and one or two others. But when it came down to a vital party question he was always with his party. The Republicans never feared that he would lead an insurrection.

Captured Arkansas.

"William J. Bryan made a tour of Arkansas and has the whole state with him on this military business," remarked Congressman Oldfield of that state. Arkansas has never been strong for military preparation. It is said that other middle western states will shy at large expenditures for military purposes.

Adjournment in the Spring.

Oscar Underwood speaks about adjournment of congress in the spring, so that congress will not interfere with the presidential campaign. The new senator expects to see cloture applied in the senate and business rushed. Congress has enough before it to keep it busy all the winter, spring and summer and late into the fall.

OUR ICY OCTOPUS.

Mount Rainier and Its Majestic Frozen Rivers.

GRIPPED BY GIANT GLACIERS

Their Hugs, Wrinkled, Frosty Arms Reach Down and Out Among the Most Luxuriant Masses of Wild Flowers to Be Found in This Country.

A frozen octopus of enormous bulk whose glittering armored body rises three miles into the sky, with twenty or more huge wrinkled arms reaching down among thousands of acres of the most gorgeous and luxuriant wild flowers to squirt from each fingertip a river of ice water into the valley below!

Surely a quotation from the "Arabian Nights" or a ghost tale to frighten children on Halloween?

But no. However figurative, this is a true statement of an actual fact. There really exists such an ice armored octopus in these United States. It is a justifiable description of the most interesting mountain in Uncle Sam's dominions and perhaps in the world.

Mount Rainier is in the state of Washington, fifty-six miles southwest of Tacoma. It is one of that celebrated range of volcanoes which were supposed to be extinct until Lassen peak broke forth again. Rainier, though supporting one of the most remarkable single peak glacial systems in the world, emits steam from certain crevices, evidence of present internal heat.

In height Rainier is second in the United States only to Mount Whitney. The altitude of the main summit has for many years been in doubt. Several figures have been announced from time to time, no two of them in agreement with each other, but all of these. It is to be observed, were obtained by more or less approximate methods. In 1913 the United States geological survey, in connection with its topographic surveys of the Mount Rainier National park, made a new series of measurements by triangulation methods at close range. These gave the peak an elevation of 14,408 feet. This last figure is not likely to be in error by more than a foot or two and may with some confidence be regarded as final. Greater exactness of determination is scarcely practicable in the case of Mount Rainier, as its highest summit consists actually of a mound of snow, the height of which naturally varies somewhat with the seasons and from year to year.

This crowning snow mound, which was once supposed to be the highest point in the United States, still bears the proud name of Columbia crest. It is essentially a huge snowdrift or snow dome heaped up by the furious westerly winds.

Six great glaciers originate at the very summit. They are the Nisqually, the Ingraham, the Emmons, the Winthrop, the Tahoma and the Kautz glaciers. But many of great size and staleness are born of the snows in rock pockets or cirques—ice sculptured bowls of great dimensions and ever increasing depth—from which they merge into the glistening armor of the huge volcano. The most distinguished of these are the Coville, the Paradise, the Frying Pan, the Carlson, the Russell, the North and South Mowich, the Puyallup and the Pyramid glaciers.

More than twenty glaciers, great and small, clothe Rainier—rivers of ice, with many of the characteristics of rivers of water, roaring at times over precipitous like waterfalls, rippling and tumbling down rocky slopes, variable noisy cascades, rising smoothly up on jagged rocks to foam, brooklike, over its lower edges.

Each glacier, whether originating at the bright summit or in vast springlike cirques, begins in even, immaculate snow. A thousand feet or so below it attains sufficient density and weight to acquire movement. Here, looking down into a crevasse, one sees nothing but clean snow, piled in layers—slightly compacted and loosely granular snow, called neve in the Swiss Alps. Gradually as the current sweeps along it compacts, under the pressure and the surface meltings, into hard, dense, blue ice.

In glowing contrast to this marvelous spectacle of ice are the gardens of wild flowers surrounding the glaciers, pushing, wherever the rock and ice will permit, up the giant slopes. These flowery spots are called parks—Spray park, St. Andrews park, Henry's hunting ground, Paradise, Summerland and many others.

"Above the forests," writes John Muir, "there is a zone of the loveliest flowers, fifty miles in circuit and nearly two miles wide, so closely planted and luxuriant that it seems as if nature, glad to make an open space between woods so dense and ice so deep, were economizing the precious ground and trying to see how many of her darlings she can get together in one mountain wreath—daisies, anemones, columbine, erythroniums, larkspurs etc., among which we wade knee deep and waist deep, the bright corolla in myriads touching petal to petal. Altogether this is the richest subalpine garden I have ever found, a perfect flower elysium."

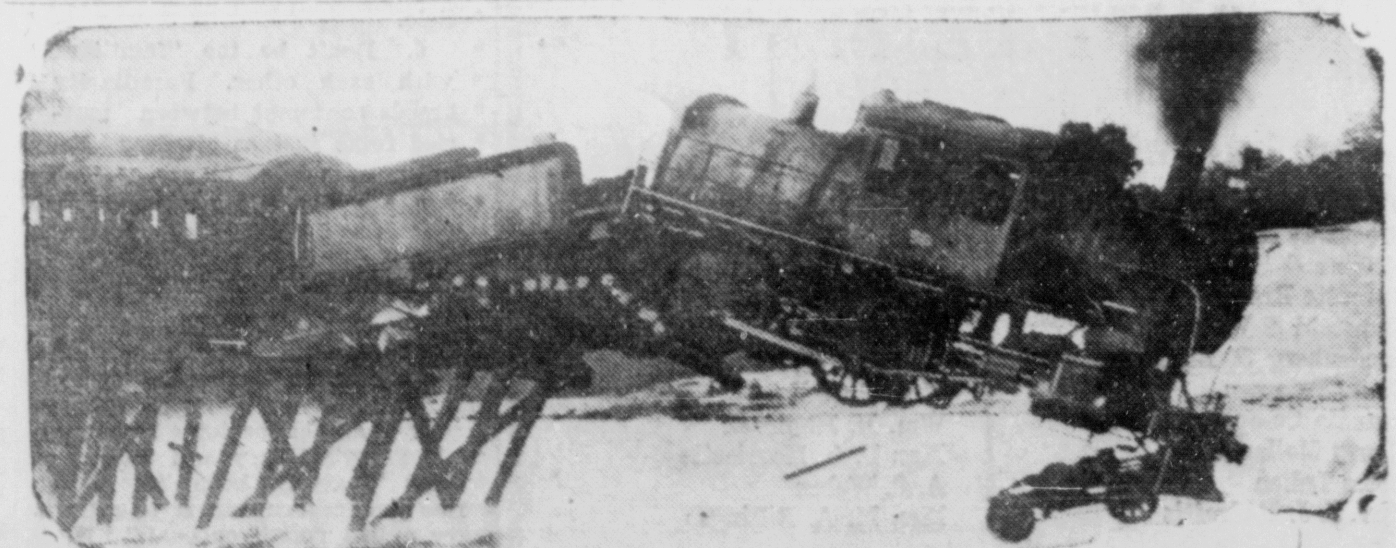

The lower altitudes of the park are densely timbered with fir, cedar, hemlock, maple, alder, cottonwood and spruce. The forested areas, extending to an altitude of about 6,500 feet, gradually decrease in density of growth after an altitude of 4,000 feet is reached, and the high, broad plateaus between the glacial canyons present incomparable scenes of diversified beauties, seemingly arranged to suit every taste.

SUIT TO ENJOIN CROSBY BOARD

Complaint Based upon Allowance of $1347.17 to S. S. Williamson Auditing Books

ALLEGED NO CONTRACT MADE

Books Have Been Audited Three Times Within the Last Eighteen Months

Crosby, Minn., Nov. 15.—Attorney A. W. Uhl of this village and M. E. Ryan of Brainerd have started an action to enjoin the payment of the bill of S. S. Williamson, a Duluth accountant, for $1,347.17, and to have the warrant issued to him by the board of education of Independent School District No. 51 declared void. The complaint states that on or about Aug. 14, the board of education passed a resolution that the books of the district be audited and that thereafter, without any legal right or authority R. J. Sewall, president of the board, employed Williamson to audit the books for the period from March 15, 1912, to July 31, 1915.

The petition further alleges that the president further employed Williamson to make a general examination of the affairs of the district and of the facts with regard to rumors of malfeasance and misfeasance on the part of officers of the board. It sets forth that on Oct. 16, 1915, Williamson presented to the board the report of examination and that the board refused to accept it.

The plaintiffs allege that the report contains numerous errors, misstatements of facts, contradictions; that it is of no value to the district and so far as it reports an audit is in the main a restatement of the reports of prior examinations made by the public examiners. The board never advertised for bids for this work and never entered into a written contract with Williamson for doing the work and never received a bond for faithful performance, according to the petition.

The complaint also states that the board allowed the bill after it had been refused and that Williamson presented an unverified bill, and that the order of the district for $1,347.17 was immediately issued and that Williamson assigned it to the First State Bank of Crosby, which is now the holder.

The petitioners pray the court to perpetually enjoin the treasurer from paying the order and that the order be declared void.

This suit is the latest move in the fight that has been going on in this district for the last three years. Several injunctions have been asked for from time to time to stop payment of certain money. The books have been audited three times within 18 months and the taxpayers are beginning to wonder.

IN DISTRICT COURT

Order Entered in the Larrabee Case—Skarold vs Krueger Fence Case Verdict Rendered

In a case against Wm. T. Larrabee, No. 825, charging him with selling liquor without a license, it was ordered in district court that the return in this case be returned to the clerk of the municipal court for the reason that it appears upon the face of the papers that it was a case properly triable before the municipal court on its merits and not one in which that court was authorized to conduct a preliminary examination.

In the case of Elizabeth Skarold vs Gustave A. Krueger, a line fence was the cause of a suit. The jury, answering two special questions, found the fence was a nuisance, but that it occasioned no money damage. The defendant asked for a new trial on the ground that the answers of the jury were not justified by the evidence. The board fence is 6 feet high, tightly built, near the plaintiff's house, who complains that it shut off light and air. The jury was given permission by the court to view the fence.

ISRAEL RITARI DEAD

Prominent Resident of Southeast Brainerd Died of Heart Disease on Sunday Noon

Israel Ritari, aged 69, died Sunday noon of heart disease at his home, 1123 Norwood street, Southeast Brainerd. He had been in failing health for two years, heart trouble being his affliction. The last two days he had been feeling very well and had so remarked. The end came in fifteen minutes, when he passed away as calmly as though in sleep.

He was born in Warsaw Finland, and came to America and Brainerd in 1905. His wife preceded him to her reward five years ago. He leaves four sons, William, Arvid, Ernest and Nels Ritari and one daughter, Mrs. Elena Bakkenen. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Jacob Setula, of Brainerd and one sister in the old country.

Mr. Ritari attended the Finnish Lutheran church and the services will be held there. The funeral will be on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 1123 Norwood Street Southeast and at 2:30 from the Finnish Lutheran church, Rev. David A. Samanen officiating.

To the family is extended the deep sympathy of the community.

COMMUNITY PLAYGROUNDS

Tuesday evening the people of Brainerd will have the pleasure of listening to Charles Frederick Weller, of New York City, on the subject "Leisure in Brainerd—A Liability or an Asset." The gentleman comes to Brainerd under the auspices of the Parks and Playgrounds committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and the address will be given at the parlors of that organization in the Iron Exchange building.

Mr. Weller has made a life study of municipal betterment and social progress, and his work at the present time as associate secretary of the Playgrounds and Recreation association of America will be of interest to every resident of this city where the playground movement is being developed. All city officials, mayor, park board, library board and school board have been invited to listen to what Mr. Weller may have to say, and every father and mother in Brainerd are also urged to be present.

BOY DROWNS UNDER ICE AT DEERWOOD

Special to Dispatch:

Deerwood, Minn., Nov. 14.—The first drowning accident of the skating season happened here today when Emil Ringham, age 12, lost his life under the ice on Reno lake. This ice formed on the lake during the night and the Ringham boy and Jasper Hughes went skating. They had not been out long when the ice broke and both were precipitated into the water.

Hughes managed to hold onto the broken ice until T. F. Cole, who heard his cries for help, rescued him. Ringham's body sank after ineffectual efforts to maintain a hold. The ice repeatedly broke under his weight and he became weak from cold.

A large crowd gathered at the lakeside when the news of the accident spread through the village. Ringham's body was recovered half an hour later. Efforts to resuscitate him were ineffectual. The dead boy was the son of a laborer here. Hughes' father is a butcher.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

At the Grand

The popular American star, Florence Reed, makes her first appearance in motion pictures in the Famous Players Film Co.'s vivid and realistic film production of Henry Arthur Jones' celebrated drama, "The Dancing Girl," the Paramount feature at the Grand. Miss Reed's splendid emotional work in such great current dramas as "The Typhoon" and "The Yellow Ticket" stamp her as well adapted to the role of the paradoxical and beautiful Drusilla, Quaker and dancing girl, demure little village maiden, and notorious belle of London Bohemia.

Living quietly in a little Quaker settlement on the Isle of Endellion, with her sober father and timid little sister, Faith, Drusilla takes service in the household of one of the nobility, where she comes under the notice of the profligate Duke of Guisberry. Finding that the girl is graceful as well as beautiful, the Duke offers to pay for her dancing lessons, and make of her a professional dancer. After a struggle between her love of life and pleasure and her Quaker scruples, Drusilla succumbs to temptation, and eventually becomes, without the knowledge of her stern old father, a notorious dancer and the favorite of the Duke. Wishing again to see her home, and the father she still loves, Drusilla again assumes a guise of a Quaker, and returns to the little village, where she is received in loving ignorance of what she has become. Here John Christian, one of the Quakers, falls in love with her, and heedless of his breaking heart, and of her sister's, who loves him, Drusilla xavily flirts with John, and leads him to believe she is not indifferent to him. The Duke visits the island and John overhears an interview between Drusilla and her protector, which shows him her true character. John confronts her with her duplicity, but though she is startled, she throws herself on his mercy, and he promises not to betray her to her family. She returns to London and takes up her old life, but at the height of her glory comes a terrible blow, that drives the crushed little dancer shivering before it, as a broken-winged butterfly flutters in the havoc of a storm. How she seeks death to forget her ruined life, and finds love and a new happiness instead, is vividly unfolded in the realistic development of the drama, and its beautiful climax on the rocky coast of Endellion.

At the Empress

Tonight will be presented "The Tangle," a four-part military drama, by Col. Jasper Ewing Brady, late of the U. S. army, and produced by Captain Harry Lambert. Brief outline of the play is as follows:

Lieut. Jack Brady, on furlough, becomes engaged to Margaret Lane, a New York society girl. They keep their engagement secret. One day she finds a photo of a beautiful girl in his possession, and being intensely jealous, abruptly terminates their engagement. Jack is ordered to join his regiment at once and is forced to leave without learning the cause of his dismissal.

Margaret returns to New York and eventually marries Col. Everett, although she admits to her soldier husband she does not love him. Later Margaret sees Jack's sister Emily and recognizes the girl as the original of the photograph. She tries to meet Jack and explain the cause of their estrangement, but still being in love with the girl, he avoids her. While she is explaining matters, Jack almost forgets she is married and is about to embrace her when Major Prescott enters. He warns them should he witness a similar scene he will inform the colonel. Later Col. Everett is raised to the rank of brigadier-general and Jack is appointed aide-de-camp. By accident the colonel finds out their love for each other and is furious and determines to kill Jack. The troops go to the front, and in a terrible battle the colonel is mortally wounded. Sending for Jack, he makes him promise to marry Margaret, then passes away. It is needless to say that the colonel's wishes are fulfilled.

At the Best

The laugh making king will again be seen at the Best Theatre tonight in a two-part comedy entitled, "The Trysting Place." In this picture Chaplin is seen to a great advantage. This picture was directed by the Famous producer of comedies, Mack Sennet, now with the Triangle and a partner of D. W. Griffith.

Also the Northwest Weekly will be shown. In this picture there are a number of very interesting doings of the northwest.

The Paramount travelogue is on the program and those that have started to keep up with the travel series will be pleased to further their journey. To those that have missed the previous one we say they should

LOCAL ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

Good roads not only cheapen the cost of transporting farm produce to market, but make the country a desirable place to live in.

We hear much talk about federal aid for good roads, yet if we wait for this movement to crystallize into a reality the people of the country will be riding in mud for some time to come. The thing to do is to take off coats and buckle into a plan for local road improvement. Be a booster for the grading of roads and follow up the work with the King road drag for maintenance.

The principle of all good roads in all states is the same—viz., keeping the water out and off of the roadbeds. Ditch, drain and drag the roads. This is the tripod of good road building.—Farm Progress.

Miss Edith Johnson who herewith writes her own story of motion picture experiences has developed within the past few years into one of the most versatile of movie stars. Before her debut in the movies, Miss Johnson was known as "the girl on the cover," her pretty face adorning the outside covers of many popular magazines.—Ed.

There really was nothing exciting about my entering motion pictures. I just wanted to get into the work and I applied to the Selig company because I enjoyed their artistic productions. I surely was surprised when I received word that I would be given a trial, for I had feared that my ambition would never be satisfied.

I had been working for a Philadelphia Company posing for illustrations which appeared on the covers of their advertising booklets. When I received word from Mr. Selig that an opportunity to enter motion picture work awaited me, I took the first train for the West and arrived as soon as possible in Los Angeles where the great studios of the Selig Company are located.

I have found it is so much easier for the men who pose for the camera to dress than the women that it almost seems unjust at times. One of the things which keeps me busy night after night in my home is planning new dresses to wear in forthcoming productions. It may surprise many to know that when an actress wears the same dress in two or three productions she is certain to receive a number of letters commenting on the fact. It is necessary therefore to change every gown in some manner after it has been worn in a few scenes in a motion picture play.

The work is harder than posing for cover subjects and there is a great deal of art connected with the work despite certain contrary statements. After several years with the Selig Company, during which I have been cast for more and more important roles, I can look back and easily notice the advancement I have made in both experience and conception of motion picture art. I fear I would have been lost when I started my engagement with the Selig Company if I had not had some previous dramatic experience, but even in my school days I was fond of amateur theatricals and frequently appeared in them, and this experience proved very valuable indeed.

There are many hazards encountered in the course of motion picture production, but an actress gets used to that quickly and it becomes a matter of course—a part of her daily life. I have got so that I consider the wild beasts at the Selig Jungle Zoo as pets rather than ferocious animals and I am told that if I feared them I would never be able to work in scenes with them. They are really like little children and one must humor them continually in order to keep them in the best of spirits.

There is one thing I feel it my duty to discuss here and I hope all the girls who read my story will profit by my experience. This is my advice to the hundreds of girls in all parts of the world who continually write to me asking if there are opportunities for them to become motion picture actresses. Some of these epistles come from very young girls, too—girls who should be thinking of their school work and not of the theater.

It has become almost impossible for young women without previous theatrical experience to secure engagements in motion picture productions. Long lists of experienced theatrical people are waiting for engagements and there is little opportunity for the amateurs to gain a livelihood via motion picture acting. And some of these girls would be sadly disillusioned, too, should they engage in the art. When your screen favorite appears in the cozy theatre and the orchestra plays and there is applause, the girls may be pardoned for longing to become film favorites like the others. This is just one side to the situation, however. The other side is not so attractive. There is the hard lot which every movie actress must undergo. Frequently work starts at 7 a. m., and does not finish until late at night. There are no bright lights, no applause in the actual work of movie acting. Instead there is the sometimes gloomy studio, suffocatingly hot under the glass roof in the summer time, often unbearably cold in the winter time; there is the director who does not hesitate to reprimand; there are the scenes to be rehearsed time and time again until one is exhausted; there are the hazards which are necessary to undergo in order to provide the thrills longed for by the audiences and there is the uncertainty for weeks or maybe months whether or not your part has "gone over."

To all "movie-struck girls" I would say "Don't!" Film critics tell me that my very best work was in the part of "Sweet Alyssum" in the late Charles Major's appealing story of the same name, released as a Selig Red Seal play in five acts. I am not surprised. The part of "Sweet Alyssum" is that of an innocent young girl, care-free and uncomplicated. She lives with her father on a little farm and is the apple of his eye. And then the stranger comes into her life. He is handsome—a school teacher with a past. She loves the stranger with all her heart and they elope and are married. Later he is arrested for theft and bigamy. There is a baby which "Sweet Alyssum" is willing to sacrifice for the life of her husband. Of course everything turns out all right and the real villain is punished.

I always loved that story and I was delighted when Director Collin Campbell cast me for the title role. I was proud, too, to appear in a Selig Red Seal play in a stock company that included such artists as Tyrone Power and Miss Kathryn Williams. I really and truly lost myself in the role, something that is as possible in motion picture art as on the legitimate stage.

The big scene where "Sweet Alyssum" holds her first-born in the line of fire from her father's rifle in order to save the life of her young husband, was rehearsed again and again before it was satisfactory and I am told the rehearsing was worth while for the scene has been pronounced one of the most intense in motion pictures.

There is another scene that I just know would be praised. That scene is where Roanoke Brooks confronts his wife with the hidden flint. It should be remembered by motion picture lovers that "Sweet Alyssum" is the first Selig play in which Tyrone Power and Miss Kathryn Williams appear. How could the scene be otherwise than tense with those two great stars playing opposite to each other? It is action that is certain to go down in motion picture history.

Perhaps That's the Reason. "How are your daughter and her husband getting along?" "Very well. We haven't been over to see them lately."—Detroit Free Press.

CHICAGO POLICE MAKE BIG RAID

Swoop Down on Place Where Lid Is Tilted.

LIVELY GUN FIGHT ENSUES

Number of Shots Are Fired on Shore of Lake Michigan When Surprise Attack Is Made on Captain Streeter's Resort.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—The police invaded and, after the exchange of fifty or more shots, captured George Wellington Streeter's "district of Lake Michigan," the filled in land on the shores of Lake Michigan, where he has successfully defied Mayor Thompson's Sunday saloon closing order.

Mrs. John Holst, the wife of one of Streeter's tenants, was shot, 192 cases of beer was confiscated, six rifles, four revolvers and three boxes of ammunition were captured, one of the buildings in the stronghold of Streeterville demolished by the hook and ladder company of the invaders, and Streeter, his wife and fifteen others are under arrest.

The land claimed by Streeter is north of the harbor and in a fashionable lake shore residence district. Streeter and his wife settled there years ago when their sailing vessel was wrecked on a bar. The sand has gradually filled in between the wreck and the shore until their claim comprises several blocks of valuable territory. The city never has admitted Streeter's title. Streeter called the new made land the United States District of Lake Michigan and has refused to recognize any authority but that of the United States.

He was often summoned to court and numerous cases for selling liquor without a license are pending.

Last week a jury found him guilty on one charge, but he took an appeal.

The main force of the invaders, consisting of thirty-five policemen, an ambulance and reinforcements from the fire department was sent to a point within call, but just out of range of observation. Eight stranger detectives found the restaurant with a number of patrons and, after being served, one of them walked to the door and lifted his hat to a scout.

Down the street the patrol wagons and hospital corps got into motion and descended on the building. Captain Streeter seized his rifle and fired, but was overpowered.

Several rifle shots came from adjoining buildings, and, in answering the fire from the home of John Holst, the police injured Mrs. Holst, but not seriously.

Charges of assault with intent to kill, violation of the state tipping law and of keeping a disorderly house were placed against Streeter. Most of the others were charged with being inmates of a disorderly house. All were released on bond.

American Consul General Will Return to London.

SKINNER OFF FOR LONDON

American Consul General Starts Back to His Post.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Robert P. Skinner, the American consul general to London, said goodbye to state department officials preparatory to returning to his post.

He left here for a few days' visit at his home in Massillon, O., and will sail Nov. 27 for England.

When Mr. Skinner was summoned home for a consultation on the trade situation there were rumors his report had displeased British authorities and that he would not return to London.

DAUGHTER WILL GET BIG POST ESTATE

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 15.—It is known that the $23,000,000 estate of C. W. Post, the food manufacturer who committed suicide a year and a half ago, will go to his daughter, Mrs. Edward Close of Greenwich, Conn., in spite of Post's will, which left the fortune to his widow.

In a suit against the Post estate started by the state of Michigan to establish the legal residence of C. W. Post and collect inheritance tax there developed an incident in the affairs of Post that makes his only child, Marjorie, now Mrs. Edward Close of Greenwich, Conn., owner of the Postum Cereal company and her father's entire fortune.

Several years ago Post went through the bankruptcy court and in the testimony given at the time Post stated that the Postum Cereal company was founded and built up out of a small fund of $750, which had been saved up by the original Mrs. Post and placed to the credit of their daughter Marjorie.

As part of the same testimony it is a matter of record that Mr. Post swore the company was the property of Marjorie and that he (C. W. Post) was her agent. This has never been corrected, according to the record, and Mrs. Close will become the sole owner of the Postum company.

Senator Underwood after a talk with President Wilson said: "The taxes will have to be increased. If the people want a larger army and navy they will have to pay for it. Generally speaking, changing the tariff will not meet the situation, because the imports have been cut down by the war."

ALL FACTIONS IN FRANCE UNITED

Sure Continuance of War Seen In Briand Cabinet.

ALL PARTIES REPRESENTED

France Acclaims New Ministry Great in Its History—Insures War to the Bitter End—New Premier Will Rule With Iron Hand—Colleagues Include Prominent Men of the Past.

Aristide Briand, who completed the formation of his third French cabinet, which contains several former premiers, will rule with an iron hand if he lives up to his reputation.

His political record is studded with masterly achievements.

He pushed through the law which separated church and state.

He smashed the railroad strike, the greatest labor disturbance France ever knew, without shedding a drop of blood.

He placed M. Poincare in the presidential chair.

Now he enters upon the titanic task of piloting France to victory with the assistance of the strongest cabinet of the Third republic and the support of every party in France.

Every shade of republican thought is represented in the ministry. The holy union, proclaimed by President Poincare at the outbreak of the war, is to be renewed when the Clerical leader, Denys Cochin, sits side by side with the Socialist leader, Marcel Sembat.

Gallieni Has Fine Record.

General Gallieni is a grim disciplinarian who will take a strong grip on the army. His greatest achievement before the war was the pacification of the rebellious colony of Madagascar, in which task General Joffre served under him.

The war minister was made military governor of Paris when the government was moved to Bordeaux. General Gallieni's mission being to defend Paris to the last if the Germans besieged the capital. He is a splendid organizer, whose greatest feat in this war has been to preserve Paris from Zeppelins.

The first action of the new ministry will be to modify radically the censorship, allowing greater liberty in the publication of war and diplomatic news and complete freedom to discuss political questions.

Universal opinion is that the constitution of this strongest possible cabinet is a plain warning to Germany that France intends to continue the war to the bitter end.

First Real Coalition Cabinet.

This is the first time in the history of the French republic that there is a coalition ministry of all the opposing parties and factions. It follows closely on the recent innovation of forming a British coalition cabinet of Conservatives and Liberals.

The action in forming the cabinet was the culmination of deep popular sentiment that at the supreme crisis of the war party division should give way to united action by all the parties in common support of the government.

As the cabinet of Viviani was representative of only a few political groups, the ministers presented their collective resignations, and President Poincare immediately charged Aristide Briand with the formation of a new organization, combining all elements.

In response to the request of the government last June that private individuals exchange their gold coins for notes a total of $200,000,000 gold has been turned over to the Bank of France.

Neither Side Asks Peace.

Rome, Nov. 15.—The assertion made in various quarters recently, that Emperor William had written to Pope Benedict asking the pope to obtain a truce from the allies, was denied emphatically at the Vatican. Officials at the Vatican declared that neither side had made any representations to the pontiff looking for peace.

Pictures Taken of School Pupils for Identification Purposes.

Photographs of every pupil in the New York public schools are being made under the direction of the board of education "for identification." Each boy or girl whose photograph has been made has received a duplicate identification card containing the bearer's photograph and has been instructed to carry it.

When the collection is complete it will contain about 700,000 photographs. Some of the parents have protested against the photographing of their children.

Informal Truces In War.

The Duke of Wellington, had the greatest difficulty in preventing informal truces when he was fighting in the peninsula war. He was forced to issue the sternest orders and take very severe measures to stop them, making it punishable with death.

At one time things came to such a pass that the duke's soldiers and the French spent hours on end sitting round one another's campfires sharing their rations and playing cards to gether.
